FORMAMENTE n° 1-2/2009 – July Issue –

The methodology of scientific research, examined in its theoretical and practical aspects is one of the main themes of the new FormaMente issue.

In particular the role of researcher is analysed from an innovative point of view, taking into account both the scientific perspective of the academic activities and the relevance of intuition and motivational factors for the achievement of positive outcomes in a multicultural context.

This issue is characterised by the presence of interesting academic contributions coming from three different continents organized around a joint research path.

Two different thematic macro-areas are addressed: the social science context and the technological applications such as artificial intelligence, sensor design and semantic web.

The Highlight section includes research guidelines and results together with an overview of events of interest for education technology sector professionals.

GUIDE PARTICIPATION IN INTERNATIONAL EVENTS

The 23rd ICDE World Conference on Open Learning and Distance Education including the 2009 EADTU Annual Conference, was held on 7-10 June 2009 in Maastricht in the Netherlands. The main discussion focused on the crucial theme of “flexible education for all”, which is a major global ambition as formulated by UNESCO. Society, the labour market, and individual as well as groups of learners require much more flexibility in their acquisition of knowledge and competencies. This implies a major modernisation of the educational system that has to be built on the sharing of international expertise and experiences. In this framework ICTs are a key factor in developing new and rich forms of institutional, interpersonal and intercultural cooperation.

In the light of those considerations, GUIDE Association took part in the conference by providing an analysis of the impact of cultural diversity on learning in general and distance education in particular. As a worldwide association, whose mission is to foster international dialogue among different regions, GUIDE showed how cultural diversity can be preserved and promoted by implementing the use of new technologies in education.
